Overview

The legal technology and services sector, comprising software and/or services providers to law firms and corporate legal departments offering everything from point solutions to end-to-end capabilities, will continue to see significant investment and growth driven by a number of broad market trends.

- Legal software market is expected to reach $25.2 billion in 2025, driven by the demand for legal expertise and the influx of new tech, such as advances in cloud computing, remote work, and machine learning.
- The ALSP market is worth ~$14 billion and has become a growing part of the legal landscape, driven by the need for more efficiency and speed to handle the growing volume of legal work, combined with tightening budgets, driving demand for cost-effective alternatives to outside counsel or hiring in-house resources.

Legal Technology and Services Subsectors

Enterprise Legal Management Software

These solutions will help in-house legal departments manage and optimize legal operations and workflows, including legal spend and eBilling, matter management, contract management, IP management, entity management, legal hold, compliance management, and search and reporting.

Legal Practice Management Software

These solutions will help law firms manage and optimize firm operations and workflows, including practice management software, billing and time management software, and case management software.

Attorney Workflow Solutions

Software, data, and tools for legal professionals will increase efficiency in delivery of legal services and insights, including contract management, eDiscovery, document management, verdict and regulatory research, AI and advanced analytics, and IP management.

Alternative Legal Service Providers

Their comprehensive services, traditionally offered by or procured from law firms, include litigation and investigation support, legal research, document review, eDiscovery, legal process outsourcing, IP filing and renewals, legal translation, compliance services, legal staffing, settlements administration, and firm support services.

At a Glance

Global Legal Tech Market ($B)

- Over 2019–2025, the global legal tech market is expected to post a 6.4% CAGR to reach $25.2 billion from $17.3 billion.
- The sizeable growth in the adoption of legal tech is driven by the rising opportunities available in the legal services market, which has allowed for greater awareness of tech-related solutions for purposes such as billing and tracking, document management, and payment processing.
- The associated benefits of using software solutions, such as contract management and efficient legal data analysis, are further boosting the demand for legal software solutions.

Common Themes and Value Drivers Across the Sector

Cloud and AI Adoption Driving Push to Adopt New Technology

- As corporates worldwide move their IT systems away from on-premise hosted solutions to cost-effective public cloud deployments, legal departments are shifting their reliance to new technology.
- The demand for integration capabilities, agile work processes, and composable architecture, coupled with digital transformation, is driving cloud adoption.

Exponential Growth of Enterprise Data

- Increasing enterprise data volume globally is boosting the demand for streamlined, standardized systems, which help organizations find, manage, access, store, and secure their data.
- Constantly rising information volume due to regulation, litigation, or compliance investigations requires software solutions to govern and scrutinize the data effectively and increase real-time access.

Increasing Regulatory and Compliance Risk

- Compliance spending was projected to remain flat to 2019 levels in 2020 due to widespread disruption of COVID-19 after several years of rapid growth, according to Gartner.
- Total compliance spend per 1,000 employees grew more than 42%, from $114,000 in 2017 to reach $162,000 in 2019.

Departments With Legal Ops Manager<sup>(1)</sup>

- Yes, Role Is Served by Lawyer
- Yes, Role Is Served by Non-Lawyer
- Yes, Role Is Served by a Dedicated Specialist Outside Legal

Use of ALSPs by Law Firms and Corporations

Significant Opportunity for Workflow Automation

- Global legal spend remains significantly concentrated in human labor hours, creating a large opportunity for software vendors capable of automating manual tasks and increasing efficiency for corporate clients and law firms.
- eSignature, eBilling, contract management, and document management remain the top four technology areas of investments by legal departments.

Rise of the Legal Ops Professional

- Jobs of legal ops professionals in corporate legal departments are increasingly taking center stage, driven by their growing focus on cost management and shift toward remote work.
- This has led to the adoption of a more holistic approach to IT and software needs in the legal and compliance space, in addition to coordination and optimization of outside counsel spend and investments in advanced legal technologies.

Increasing ALSP Adoption as Corporations and Law Firms Seek to Reduce Costs

- Growing access to specialized expertise remains a strong driver of the adoption of ALSPs both by law firms and corporations in the U.S.
- This adoption is expected to accelerate, owing to the belief that the outsourcing of certain tasks to ALSPs rather than assigning them to in-house or external attorneys can better preserve margins.

Spotlight: Alternative Legal Services Providers

ALSPs offer a wide range of functional and outsourced support services to law firms and corporations, including eDiscovery, litigation support, legal process outsourcing, and specialty legal services.

Breakdown by Subsectors
eDiscovery	 eDiscovery allows legal professionals to process, review, tag, and produce electronic documents—such as emails, files, and databases—with the intent of using them as evidence in civil or criminal legal cases.
Litigation Support	 Legal Staffing/Document Review allows companies and legal professionals to recruit the right professionals and enables organizations to examine the documents related to a litigation matter to assess their relevancy, responsiveness, and privilege.  Deposition Services is a solution offered by highly trained professionals with the ability to capture the words spoken during a court or deposition proceeding and convert them into readable, searchable, and archivable information.  Records Retrieval refers to the process of finding or locating old data, documents, files, or records—such as legal documents, account records, medical records, or insurance records.
Legal Process Outsourcing	 Legal Process Outsourcing refers to the practice wherein a law firm or corporation outsources flexible lawyering, contract management, compliance, legal software and IT support, or specialty consultation services on a functional or “captive” basis. For law firms, LPO refers to internal support functions—such as IT, research, legal ops, and procurement—to save costs. For corporates, LPO refers to a third-party alternative to traditional law firms, providing a fully or partially managed solution for all legal services.
Specialty Legal Services	 Legal Translations involve translation of text from documents such as identity-related documents, financial documents, official reports, transcripts, filed patents, legal rulings, and witness statements into the official language of the pertinent jurisdiction.  IP Services and Solutions include a comprehensive suite of solutions such as patent landscaping, freedom to operate searches, patent filing and translation, patent renewals, patent licensing, and prosecution.  Legal Settlements/Administration are often driven by regulatory and/or compliance requirements in regular business activities as well as litigation such as class action, mass tort, and personal injury.

Fast-Growing and Evolving ALSP Market...

Global ALSP Market ($B)

...Creating a Massive Market Opportunity

Widening Gap Between the Demand and Need for Outside Counsel

Corporate legal departments are bringing more work in-house due to rising outside counsel costs and shifting needs for expertise in specific areas, choosing to work directly with ALSPs.

Multiple ALSP Categories Representing a $50+ Billion Addressable Market

Although the highlighted categories represent a ~$14 billion TAM, the ALSP landscape includes multiple adjacent categories—such as records, compliance, and contract management—which would likely more than triple the overall market size.

Law Firms Invest to Compete Against ALSPs

Law firms often struggle to profitably and efficiently compete with ALSPs, given their cost structure, and hence focus on making their own investments in technology and infrastructure so as to offset both pricing pressure from their client base and increasing salaries for talented attorneys.

Technology Adoption

Investments in technology and software by ALSPs have automated workflows, thereby driving efficiency and reducing turnaround times and costs—a compelling value proposition for law firms and corporations alike.

Fragmented Market Landscape Ripe for Consolidation

Despite experiencing record investment and consolidation over the past five years, the ALSP market remains fragmented, with even the largest category leaders representing less than half of the overall market.

Opportunities for the “Integrated” ALSP Model

Current Model:

Many competitors offer strong expertise in one “stage” of the litigation lifecycle but lack the product offerings, expertise, and/or scale to meet diverse client needs

Integrated Model:

Long-term, stickier client relationships; virtuous, compounding cycle of sales and delivery; direct control and greater share of contingent spend and resources; and increasing productivity and efficiency

The ALSP sector continues to experience record levels of investment and M&A activity as providers seek to add scale, new clients and geographies, and capability sets to differentiate themselves in the market.
